Chant: 80.

Title: He Mele Kanikau - A Dirge

Composer: W. I. Haaheo (probably pronounced Ha'aheo)

Date: March 23, 1860 Honokōhau, Maui

Description: This dirge has a strong Christian flavor to it. The place names mentioned are mostly from the island of Maui. The two lines referring to the lanipō lua rain are very similar to a portion of a chant for Bernice Pauahi Bishop given in the dictionary under lanipō.

A Dirge

A kanikau for telupaina (Tryphena) Wainee /Waine'e/

My wife from the calm of Lele

The wind flies mauka of Hauola

Probably observing Lahainaluna

From the wehe lau niu /coconut frond opening/ wind of Māla

Looking at Hono-s /Hono-kōhau etc./ of the islands

We are separated, friend you are away

God has taken his, the soul

You will not see this world again

Terribly filthy actions

The one with whom I would go along the road

My companion in the rain and sunshine

Patient companion of riteousness

This is (?bidding -pikini?) you aloha

My companion of the lanipō lua /very dark/ rain

Like the darkness of midnight at Ko'olau

© You All

Chant 80. cont.

(? Your multitudes bud with Honokōhau ?)

Crying for you

Our parents trembling

With unrestrained lamentation over you

Oh you dear one

From the cold wind called Kēhau

I have been smitten by your love

Struck and dropping at the waters of Pahukawa /pr//?/

Your Creator has come to get you

You have seen the restful place

That you heard about in the Holy Bible

You are Rescued, the toil is over

Who has rescued you?

Jesus, the Lord has

Amen

W. I. Haaheo Honokōhau, Maui March 23, 1860

Lonoikamakahiki-kapu-o-Keawe I

Composer: Ancient Song (English note on the last page gives some background)

Date: 1924 (date of submission)

Description: This manuscript was found ordered as follows: 82.j), 81.b)-82.a), 82.b), 82.c), 82.d), 81.a), 82.e), 82.f), 82.g), 82.h), 82.i). The pages were numbered and arranged in their present order because it seems to fit the presentation of the material better. There may have been a mix up when the chants were first filed. Chant 81. is a little over one page in length.
Chant 82. appears to actually be two chants included under the same title, the second of which begins on page 82.f). All three chants give considerable attention to places. There are references to encircling islands as well as what might be considered listings of places. No translation was done for these chants.

Chant: 84.

Title: None

Composer: Kaloma (w) (probably pronounced Kaloma) submitted by C. W. K. Kēnui (probably pronounced Kēnui)

Date: April 4, 1860

Description: Chant 84. is a short note describing a chant rather than a chant itself. The chant referred to may have been lost/misfiled.

Kahakuloa 4, April 1860

S. C. Armstrong (sic)

Greetings. I am sending you a/another (kekahi) song composed by Kaloma wahine about her husband's frequent escapades with loose women. It has been well known using (lit. out of) the famous places about Kahakuloa, Honokōhau, Kā'anapali, Lahaina, Olowalu, Ukumehame, and Keālia.

As you announced in Ka Hae Hawai'i number 51852 of Book IV and because of having such a small amount of paper, I wrote you about it, not as something to publicize however. (Only) the song should be publicized if you feel that it is important.

*Gratefully,
C. W. K. Kēnui*

Title: He Mele no Kekuaokalani - A Song for Kekuaokalani

Composer: S. C. L. Halo'u

Date: None submitted from Lamaloa /pr//?/, Kohala

Description: This difficult to interpret chant makes much use of the sound haauwe for which no meaning could be found in the dictionary. In the end of the chant counting of these haaupes is done up to the number nine. No translation was done for this chant.

Title: He Mele He Inoa no Iosia - A Song A Name (song) for Iosia (Josiah)

Composer: G. M. Kauaoena /pr/

Date: July 14, 1860 Hōlualoa, North Kona, Hawai'i

Description: This chant makes much mention of intoxicating liquors. The composer notes at the bottom that the chant is incomplete.

A Song A Name for Iosia

The longing of the eyes is beautiful

The dream of the eyelashes

Here is your interest right here

Your reasonable price

That one and I do not get along well

It's a glass of beer that (you) can't get drunk from

Here comes the brandy

That will make your throat cough

That you will like to drink so much

That will fill (your) capacity

That will make (your) eyeballs spin

I don't know what gin is like

The (? red remaining ?) liquid from America

Sparkling through the glass

Suppress the thought

That the sealing will be appropriate when stamped

(? You are like floating rain when you are quick and alert ?)

I am a rubbery one to grind

Chan

Chant 86. cont.

There is but one flower of beauty, aloha

Streaming at the emotions (piko)

I will not stay

Land of many konohikis

I will go and stay

In the cold bosom of Hanahua /pr//?/

Yours is love oh jealousy

Oh linen that tugs at my heart

Title: He Mele Inoa no Ka Haku O Hawai'i - A Name Song for Ka Haku O Hawai'i

Composers: by parts Makaliilii (probably pronounced Makali'ili'i), R. Kekuawili (probably pronounced Kekuawili), R. D. Kapela (probably pronounced Kapela), and Nailielua (probably pronounced Nā'ili'elua) /Each name is given in the original with what appears to be a place name following it/

Date: None

Description: This chant follows a set style although it was composed by several different individuals. Some of the lines especially the reoccurring chorus suggest a mele ma'i rather than a mele inoa as the chant is identified by the composers. The imagery is quite nice in a number of the lines. The place names mentioned are primarily from O'ahu and Kaua'i.

A Name Song for Ka Haku O Hawai'i

The forest of Ka'ala is like the bud of a hau blossom in the wind

Spinning, fastening on the wind called the Kaiāulu

Sweet thoughts of the plains of Līhu'e come to mind

Keoni miki's /?/ cowboys (?charge - huhue?)

Hurry, the city boys must go home, it is evening

That man is sweet who has been touched by love

U Ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Move (? leleaaanae ?) chew the blossom of the 'āhihi

I became enraptured (wishing) Kahuailana /pr//?/ were mine

Wanting to see Kahaukomo

I have entered Where are you?

You are my (? leleuaki - watch jumping ?) companion

You have come on a lucky evening

Chant 87. cont.

U ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Haku O Hawai'i a name (song)

composer Makaliilii / Ainaimi

The bird of Ka'ula is like the bud of a hau blossom on the sea

Lahalaha /pr//?/ is supported on Leinoai /pr//?/

I own some food that he has with him

I left it there that's my repository

The hands of the sun touch Kalaihi /pr//?/

Giggling in the waters of Nāmolo-kama

U ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Move (? kahalahala ?) move to the sands of Hoohila /pr//?/

Don't miss the touch of love

I (? hookapaki - taboo ?)-ed the lehua of Luluupali /pr//?/

Where have you gone?

I am makai of Kupakoili /pr//?/

If I sleep wrongly, It will be partially wrong from telling about the big thing

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Haku O Hawai'i a name (song)

R. Kekuawili/ Halehala

Chant 87. cont.

The forest of Moelana /pr//?/ is like the bud of a hau blossom in the 'Āpuakea rain of Mololani

Wanting to see Lanihuli

I turn always grasping the hala fruit of Kekele

Kaipuolono /pr//?/ has escaped the Kuahine rain

(? Kaukupeke ?)-ing among the leaves of the koa trees of Luakaha

I take off enraptured with the beauty of Waipuhia

U ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Wai'ale'ale moves along moved along by the mist

When it perches crowded upon Alaka'i

I lead you, a little power

Still that same little power until entering the mouth of great rain

I have something important, I have something everlasting

We (? hahane - find life ?) in the waters of Moolu /pr//?/

That is where we felt throbbing pain

U ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Haku O Hawai'i a name (song)

R. D. Kapela / Mana

The height of Kawaikini is like the bud of a hau blossom in the wind

Flying teasingly at Makuaiki point

You are a small one in the nest left there by the mind

Conceited haughty at the cliff of Nu'alolo

The hands of hīhīmanu reach to grasp

Hurry to select the food of the guest

U ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Move, recalling move to the waters of Kemamo

What is (? ka lanipuu ?) doing sitting there?

Looking at the beauty of Hulē'ia

Don't reveal love's gourd

(? We enter the (? halaulani ?) water of Wailua ?)

Come together to sway in the kalukalu plants of Kapa'a in the wind

U ieie-ie-ieie-ie-i

I'm smaller, your beak is getting big

I'm smaller, your beak is swelling up

Several Prayers used in Love Charms

(with explanatory notes by Mary Pukui)

O Makani-keoe, fly you to him,
To him give yearning, to him give disturbance,
To him give sleeplessness.
O Makani-keoe, whistle and fly,
A sleepless night, two nights, three nights,
At the house in the upland, the house in the lowland,
The house to be filled with the emotions of love,
Make him sleepless; go and disturb him,
So that he can not sleep at night.
Ascend to the first hill, the second hill, the third hill,
Ascend to the fourth hill, ascend to the fifth hill,
To the places of the kahuna who stands here with offerings.
The papaa is the sugar-cane, a sugar-cane that holds to love,
The milo is the wood to set love awhirl,
The kihi is the sweet potato, a sweet potato to make angles,
The manulele is the sugar-cane to make love fly hither,
The nopili is the fish to make love cling fast,
The shrimp is the "fish" to keep my loved one from being peeled off,
The aholhole is the fish to make the loved one fret,
The laukona is the sugar cane to make love increase as the Kona [wind].
The gusty Kona wind, the quiet Kona wind,
Here is the walu fish to "scratch" at my loved one.
Come back, come and let us be together.
Through pinching, biting and looking away [love departed]

This setting aside of the other, O god, is finished. Come back.

The wauke plant has been erected at the door of the house,

At the house where love dwelt, five times have taro greens been offered,

That my love be not separated from me,

O hau leaf, O ilima, scratch at the face of the loved one.

Go you to him and return.

The leaves used are the leaves of the pili grass, the hoi and the other leafy symbols of Makani-keoe, such as the papaa-hekili and also the pualele weed wrapped in a young rolled up ti leaf.

(Note. Makani-keoe was the name of the god appealed to in the hana-aloha sorcery. He did his work as swiftly and as silently as the wind.

The papaa is a variety of red sugar cane and used because the word "paa" or "hold fast" is in its name.

The milo, a native tree, is used because milo and mimilo also mean to entwine as well as to whirl about.

The kihi, a variety of sweet potatoes, was supposed to help make the charm kihikihi or angular, causing a constant feeling of discomfort.

The manu-lele (flying bird) sugar cane could cause the lover to fly to the one that sent the "wind" god, as a bird flies to its nest.

The word pili, or to cling, is found in the name of a specie of fresh water gobey fish (nopili) and used for the purpose of making the lover cling fast.

The shrimp, opae, when ceremonially used, was sometimes called mahiki (to peel off).

The name of the fish aholhole, has the word hole in it, that is, to fuss and fret, as a child that is crying and squirming about on its mother's lap.

The laukona sugar cane was used both to induce love or to counteract it.

The "lau" in the name means to increase (literally - 400) whereas konakona is to despise.

The walu is not only the name of the fish but also to scratch.

The pili is not only the name of the grass but also to cling.

The hoi vine was used to make the victim hoihoi or pleased to see one.

1. On being called for the sick. If you are outside of the house and the patient comes to get you where you may be sitting outside on a grass covered mound, and just beyond is a heap of earth covering one spot, then you will know that the patient will die and will not recover.
 2. It is when the kahuna is found [sitting] on a pile of mats, that you will know that the patient will recover.
 3. If the kahuna goes and finds the patient covered except for his eyes, or with bed clothes pulled over the head, the patient is going to die. (This sickness is called "kepa" (turn to bite).
 4. If, when the kahuna comes, the patient is sitting up, and upon seeing the kahuna he lies down, then the patient is going to die and not live. (This kind of sickness is the "lupe" (kite).
 5. If the kahuna comes and patient is lying down quietly and is covered with the bed clothes up to his neck, the sickness is curable.
 6. If the kahuna comes and the patient's head is covered over, then he is going to die. The name of this sickness is "poipu" (covered up). If he is covered except the head, then the sickness is curable. Do not shake the coverlet at that time. Cover with a white coverlet and prepare a cup of awa. Then seize the coverlet in the left hand, lift and shake it.
 7. A fatal sickness is the "paeamaia." The nature of this is that if the kahuna comes and patient is propped up with one, two or three pillows and he leans upon them in front, then [the sickness] is the "paeamaia" (piled up bananas). It is a sign of death.

A Concoction for Venereal Disease in Men

Take five kowali (ipomoea insularis), twenty leaf buds of the wauke malolo (Touchardia latifolia), five pieces of the root of the awa plant, one honuaula sugar cane, using the juice. Masticate and strain through ahuaawa stems that have been pounded into fibers. Put juice into a cup and drink.

How to Gather the Herbs

Separate the first kowali root that is pulled up and mark it 1, and so on to the fifth. It is not well to mix them up. So it is with the gathering of the wauke malolo leaf buds, separate the first four and mark them and so on to the fifth. Gather fresh ahuaawa and pound it well to [extract the] fibers. Take one honuaula sugar cane, and use the juice. Cut the root of the awa plant into five pieces.

The Preparation

When the medicine is ready and the patient shows signs of fear and goose flesh creeps up, then rub his body with water before drinking. After drinking let him eat a section of sugar cane from the cane that is left over and not any more than that.

The Last Treatment

The medicine should be taken in the morning when the stomach is empty and wait till the afternoon for the medicine to act on the bowels. If the patient is very hungry he must wait before eating. First, roast five kukui nuts, beginning with the first down to the fifth. When cooked, scoop out all the meat of the first kukui nut, [and let the patient] chew it well and swallow it. This is followed by a mouthful of water and so on to the fifth kukui nut. Be careful about the order in eating and in roasting lest they be mixed up. After all have

A MELE ON THE CREATION

BY CHIEFESS KEKUPUOHE

God breathed into the empty space
And widely spread His power forth;
The Spirit, flying, hovered o'er;
His power grasped the movable, it was fast;
The earth became embodied
The islands also rose.
God made this wide, extended heaven
He made the heavens long, long ago.

He dwelt alone, Jehovah by Himself,
The Spirit with Him.
He fixed the sun his place,
But the islands moved, moved the islands,
With sudden noiseless, silent speed;
We see not His skilful work,
God is the great support that holds the earth."

History relates that the Hawaiian Chiefess KEKUPUOHE was one of the wives of King Kalaniopuu who reigned when Capt. Cook visited Kealakekua Bay in 1779, and that she was one of those who persuaded the King not to go on board of Cook's ship on the fateful day, (February 14, 1779) when Cook was killed. Kekupuohe joined the Christian Church when over 80 years of age; this mele was composed by her a few years before her death, which occurred after she had passed her 90th. year, reported to have been somewhere in the 1830s.

malama e no keana
e i na pauku wahie a ka wai, wai aloha
wai lua nui me wailua iki, he iki kali ae ka ni na puahoe a ka ma kani, a kaili palala i kehua ke kai.

HAWAIIAN INTERPRETATION

Anu maila nā pali Ko'olau,
He ko'ou, he kēwai ka paia o ka hale,
Mālama 'ē nō Ke'anae i nā paukū wahie a ka wai,
Wai aloha Wailua Nui me Wailua Iki,
He iki kali a'e, kani nā pu'a hoe a ka makani,
A kā'ili pā lala i ke hu'a ke kai. /note dictionary does not list hu'a with ke so this interpretation of kehua as ke hu'a is not on as steady a foundation as would be desirable.?

ENGLISH INTERPRETATION OF HAWAIIAN INTERPRETATION

The Ko'olau cliffs have become cold,
The walls of the house are damp and dripping,
Ke'anae has already taken care to keep the pieces of firewood (sought by) the water,
Waters of love are Wailua Nui and Wailua Iki, There will be a slight wait, and (then you will hear) the whistle of the wind as it breathes,
And the sea will come in at an angle and snatch away the foam.
/Ko'olau is a district in East Maui. Ke'anae, Wailua Nui, and Wailua Iki are places in East Maui./ translation by W.H. Wilson 9/16/1977
