Chant: 15.

Title: Pule Palo - Prayer of Revelation

Date: composed around 1825, submitted April 12, 1860

Author: Kaeleowaipio, submitted by A.

Description: This is a traditional prayer with Christian subject matter

"Pule Palo"
composed by Kaeleowaipio

Dear Ka Hae Hawaii - The Hawaiian Flag,

Greetings. Listen a bit, Flag, to this prayer of the ancient days. The holy name of our Lord has been inserted also however in it. This prayer was started in the year 1825. That is when I heard it. The prayer is as follows below:

Kukuwaiku stand

Pihakuea, stand in lines

Poili la, Poele la

Rough stomach (?)

A great god, a powerful god

An eternal god is Jehova

A traveler from the heavens

A god who lives in the heights

At the tips of the wind

In the floating clouds

A cloud that (?) on the earth

An eye that stands on the ocean

Jesus our saviour in whom we find life

Chant 15. cont.

From Hawaii to Kauai

From this Kahiki (foreign land) to that Kahiki

From the (? joining ?) to the meeting

The rain from heaven is chilled

Jehova in wants

(? haimene ?) to the heavens leaning back in pain

The earth is joyful

The word is found

Knowledge, power, life

Meet at the (? polopeki ?)

In the presence of the ever powerful Lord

Pray in consecration to Jesus

To the (? bit ?) of power of the islands Amama - ancient word like amen

When it started at first, when the word of God began to be spread, the people grew majestically in joy, praying night and day, men, women, and children. So those who enjoyed praying in the ancient days entwined the name of Jesus with the ancient prayers. And that is what the above prayer is.

Keei South Kona H.(Hawaii) April 12, 1860

Chant: 16.

Title: None

Author: The children (? only child ?) of Keaweikekahialiiokamoku

Date: None

Description: This is a kanikau for Kamehameha III. The chant is written in such a style that the individual lines run into each other. This style has been preserved where possible in the translation. The last two pages of this chant contain lines very similar and in some cases identical to those found in chant 6. The original source of these lines is unclear.

H. Limaikaika (Armstrong)

Greetings. Because of what you said to your subscribers here in the country, that is to send in chants and dirges, here comes "Hau flowers of Kalena squat." (saying - refers to good looking people who do no work), "The juice of the mulberry is squeezed." (? saying ?), with the presentation of this dirge composed for our dearly beloved parent who has passed away, Hoeuli e eu ka moku, Kamehameha III. This chant was composed by the children (? only child ?) of Keaweikekahialiiokamoku, the chief who held back the sun, the people of the west are in darkness.

This is a dirge of love your majesty, Kauikeaouli,

Shady clump of the island

The bright light of the lands

Kailipau is the breath of the heavenly one

Dying gasps on Mohalu, flew off on the 15 of Dec.

Your name song Cry out

Iolani K. IV has sung his dirge

Alas my lord, my parent

That the night has taken away. Such grief, such a shame

Chant 16. cont.

Terrible grief for you

Puna is sacred to the woman, the pit is so hallow

Fear fills the forest of Heeia

No man passes (?)

Your name song Cry out

Kauai of Manokalanipo cries out

Oahu of Kakuhihewa looks on

Maui island of Kakaalaneo gives her confidence

Hawaii island of Keawe swims forth

Your name song Cry out

The death of the heavenly one at noon resounds, sumbles

And meets with the cries of Kapakuhaili

Alas my husband, my companion of the Koolaus

From the Malanai wind of Kailua, Opening the shade of the shade of the kukui tree, that the rain inhabits in the Sacred hall of the wind

Your name song Cry out

(? At Anomeha of the return of the heavenly one

On top of Halealii Uaiku ?) The appearance

Of the heavenly one on the 10 th of January at 12

Noon, Iliilihia (stricken with awe) of Malulani (heavenly shade)

Eehia (reverence) on the day of the heavenly one's funeral

Your name song Cry out

The people, the citizenry have seen that the symbolic flag of the heavenly one is up

Chant 16. cont.

The clouds are clear, the sun is shady nothing is seen
The wind is calm for you oh heavenly one
Your name song Cry out
You are the one carried on high to the temple tower
Your body rests within the rare building
He has the body of a bird, the heavenly one has the name of a bird
Your name song Cry out
The warriors go, the roadway is at peace, you have Mastered all professions, your majesty, Kinau lio is held for wailing
With a cowry lei that has been beautified on his neck
The leading point of the warriors, the people
England, and France, and America, newspapers will be taken so that the lands of Vistoria (sic)
Will know, a fame for (this) land (initiated) by your ancestor
/Kamehameha I/ Your name song Cry out
Start on the day of the funeral
The calvary is (taken) by Mataio /M. Kekuanaoa/
The soul of his majesty is in Honolulu
Kahihi lani is Wakea
A heavenly lineage from Honuakau
(? A multitude from the chief Maomao ?)
Your name song Cry out
The wind is breathed
From Hooipo in the Malanai wind
That is a majestic one from Uahine

Chant 16. cont.

(? There is indeed a carriage ?) Your name song Cry out

(? The stand of stems of Hakalani has been counted ?)

Alas my companion with whom difficulties were shared in the forest in

The ocean (i.e. ships), (? Let the resounding cry of the heavenly one call out ?)

Oh Lono, here is your heavenly bud

Your leaf, your leaf bud, your new shoot, your tender new leaf, your sacred spirit

Oh Kahaipiilani Your name song Cry out

You will be cried over oh Uliuli kai pali o

Kahikinui, the misty fog crawls forth,

The mountains here at Kamae are strong, the oo bird

Is calling, the bird of Puuloa that goes to Kanehili

Acting like the bird that braids flowers, that braids leis of Hilo,

Perhaps Eleua is from Hilo, a rain child of Kulukulua's,

The sky drips and it falls down, tears drip,

Drip to the sands of Hale'lii (Halealii), like a river is the love,

Cold, numbness, chilled dampness of the back the front is warm

Your name song Cry out

Kuupau wails in public

I feel for the rain as it lies so

The lehua at the uplands of Nuuanu lies on hinano blossoms

It has become entwined with the kamakahala flowers of Lanihuli

Your name song Cry out

You will be cried over

Heeia thatches the lehua house of the birds

Accidentally placing the young leaves of the ohia tree

Chant 16. cont.

There is misty rain, cold mist from the mountains
The forest of Ookuauuli is dark
Dark from the persistent biting of the wind
Wind that amis (a hula motion) squatting and the sands are joyful
Enjoying the (? four ?) amis of the rain
The (? extra thing ?) that the bitter rain has done
The call of the alala bird is sweet on the plain of lehua
The boasting oo bird in the uplands of Wahinekapu
The forest of Kukalaula is sacred
Maukele sparkles flashing in the sun that cuts fish line

Section 2,

That is better for the Polohinano rain
The lei is folded like piles of kapa
Ball the lei together and leave it alone
Look at the lehua and hala boundries of Panaewa
(? The sight of the weight of the flowers ?)
In the forest, what a shame about my plain of lehua flowers,
The bird is shy, timid
Shyness is what is loved for men
It's you It's me
You will be cried for
The ohia of Panaewa (?)
Stem in the Kanilehua rain
Hilo is beautiful, perfect in the wind blown fragrance
Puna is quiet made high by the god
Bright from the redness of the woman's fire
Let the thoughts within be as a wife to me

Chant 16. cont.

Waring, fighting, rebelling with sleep

Puna land of the tumbling waters in the sky

Tumbling down at the face of the cloud

Dripping solitary sea rain drops on the head of the hala tree

The flower changes, the shoots (that are pilled) in the forest

Chant 17.

Title: None

Date: May 22, 1860

Author: Kahalelaau

Description: This is a kanikau for Eleio Nua. The author is her husband.

This is a dirge of love for you Eleio Nua

My beloved who has gone

You have gone

The rest of your house of love remains

Alas for you, Alas for us

Men love their wives

(I) have no wife, companion in the damp cold

For the long nights of winter, (you sleep)

I sleep, repenting sighing in love

My wife who has past away

You have gone on Hiikua

Your love has gone on Hiialo

That is what I am keeping

From your departure, never matched in its length

Leave the house of human waters

Go to the house of divine waters

Oh my child

Your love so frequently guarded

This body in the Lanipoko rain of tears

These tears that are flowing now are rain!

They are also a plaything for my love that remains

Chant 17. cont.

Care for your companion, wives are leis
Companions in the damp cold
The bosom of Kuikuiula is cold
My companion with whom I have spent pleasant times here in the land of Paia
My companion in the dizzy days of need without food
We survived on food that requires no smoke
The food that the long time residents brought
My wife in the Ulalena rain of Piipiholo
We went (?) among the kukui trees of Lili
Like the mesh of a net on top the koa trees of Haiku
My wife in the wide path of the land
(? haughty ?) sand in the shade of the guavas of Wailuku
Companion with whom I crouched in the cold of the wind called the Kailipoe
My wife among the lehua blossoms of Kaukini
They bloom there at Kahakahalani
My wife at the eight seas
My companion with whom I climbed the swells of Pailolo Channel
My wife in the calm of Lele
The members of the royal court have brought it
Looking at the bays of Piilani
My wife along the road where men are struck of Nuuanu
Looking at the broken coral pieces of Heeia Kea
My wife in the rain of Apuakea
The Poaihale rain of Kahaluu
Burdened, heavy with your love that remains

Chant 17. cont.

Alas for you who have gone alone

I remain with our lei, a child

With our (? younger brothers and sisters ?) who remain

Alas my wife of both night and day

My companion in ruling proudly over the land

Relaxing on the plains of Kamaomao

Never clearing mist in the breaking of the sea

Hear the sighing makai of Hamakuapoko

Title: Mele Kanikau no Keoua - Dirge for Keoua

Composer: None copied by D. B. N. Kauila

Date: copied March 27, 1860

Description: This kanikau gives considerable attention to the North Kona-Kawaihae-Waimea area of Hawaii. There are several difficult areas in the chant. Therefore the translation cannot be considered dependable for the entire chant.

His majesty Kekupuapa is the chief, Kekupuapa in the great heaven

This is a dirge of love for you, Paneku, alas for you

At Puuloa in the many harbors, his majesty lies there

There is no lameness or tired muscles

The turning, the moving of the body is over

There are no eyes to the body, your majesty

So his sight is gone

(? His hearing was then taken ?)

Life just barely continues way deep inside, in one of the caves of night

The man misses (? the pit of the fleshlessness swaying in the cold is the lonely one ?)

Lono is (? the broken one ?) the high point of the hala

Mistakenly grab the dead body

Oh! You are a native of Kona, a guard of Kamakahonu

His majesty enjoys the calm of Keoua, in the stillness in the

Smooth quiet calm

Keolai wails

It's like a morning cloud

It's as if it were the day of Hoku, the day of Mahealani (? ila ?)

Alas for my sister

My companion in the rain of the day

Chant 18. cont.

From the long point, oh land
It's a point outside Keahole
Appearing outside Ka Pulau
Mahauila is a conoe landing nearby
Kekupuapa bathes, dives in the waters of Keawehala
His majesty's canoes paddle in unison
Kalaemano is a long ocean
Dive in the water oh Luahine wai
His majesty stays there
De depends on the Eka wind's falling down
The wind of bitterness blows
It is a wind in which Kona takes pride
The wind up mauka is very dark
The wind down makai (? kumuku ?) /possibly the Mumuku wind/
The eyes place themselves your majesty
Wainanalii is a landing place
Make fish line in the shade of a kou tree
His majesty Kekupuapa is sitting as nine islands appear (? Stomach at the earth, below the chief works ?)
(? That is below, below earth, the earth of Kumuhonua ?)
(? Kii, Ulu, Nana, Nanama, Nanailani, Nanamaoa ?)
Right the canoe at Anaehoomalu outside
Outside ka pa niau, his majesty asks
What is this wind?
It's the Wai lei from up mauka
The wind of bitterness blows

Chant 18. cont.

(? The heart is connected ?)

Kowaihae (sic) is a canoe landing nearby

His majesty listens there to the whispering

Of the sea, talking with the sand

Turn away, oh Paneku

Go to the red pili grass of Kowaihae

It's a hot climb, large cliffs

Stand on the pile for placing ina sea urchins

It's enjoyable, Puuiki is sitting

His majesty is hot and sticky

On the plains of Kaupo

As the horse runs so

Waimea is a dirty land

Dust swirls around his majesty

Caught in the spray of the rain

The pee pa kaiaulu /hide by village walls/ rain, Waimea is a dish of liquid

The horse travels to olelo koa, to reach Opeawai

His majesty enjoys himself there

He cries over the house sites

Pity for the waters of Uluomalama

This is an intense expression of love and loyalty, grief, treasuring of his majesty

My companion, companion in the luna rain, oh Halalehua

(? A breaking lei made by the sea ?)

(? Made by that old pit, blossoming in the sands of Hanakahi ?)

Let the feelings of love be for the same night

Chant 18. cont.

Returning it to that multitude
Both eyes are looking
A love that has gone shall be yours
His majesty (? ke kaaku ?) disappears
(? Kanekanaloa, ?ka amihai? the great look, collect your name ???)
The spirit that withstands rain and wind of Waimea is yours
The spirit that returns lovingly, the salt returns to your spirit
The spirit of his majesty sits
Clasping an ulei berry, eating an ohelo berry
Eating (? chicken ?) among the leaves of the trees
Mahiki is a point with trees
It's an uninhabited and lonely mountain
Speaking in the voice of a bird, He talks with a bird
Kewala at Puuomoeawa
His majesty has fond recollections
Alas for his friend, a man
My companion of childless nights
Long life living on the cloud
Cloud that has burst into the world of light
Caring for love
Sighing over feelings of loss
Mourning in love for his majesty
Calling Manukiu
Oh rain above that scatters lehua blossoms
(? Ancient snare in the road ?)

Pololikamanu stands

Asking the road, where am I?

The spirit is down makai, your majesty

Wearing hala leis for Anoilele

The spirit flies up filled with love

It leaves the assembled body

Go up, and live with Jesus in heaven

At the place he wants

(? Where spying was done to find him in a lonely place ?)

Let the Holy Spirit be your husband

Love forever lost

Love never returning

Chant: 19.

Title: He Mele No Ka Haku O Hawaii - A Song For Ka Haku O Hawaii

Composers: first part - Kaulu second part - S. W. B. Kaulainamoku (see chants 46. + 51.)

Date: None

Description: This name song consists of eleven stanzas, five composed by one person and six by another. The first five stanzas clearly refer to the fact that Ka Haku O Hawaii is a baby. Much of this part of the chant seems to refer to the composer leaning over the baby, the baby's reactions, and the composer's impressions. The last six stanzas, numbered separately and composed by a different person, follow the same general style as the first part. There are four lines per stanza followed by a chorus of two lines. The imagery in the second part differs from the first part. The subject of the chant is referred to as a shy flower that is afraid of a bird. Evidently the bird is the composer. Both composers give the impression that Ka Haku O Hawaii was not an easily pleased baby. The chant was submitted to ~~Ka~~ Ha~~e~~ Hawaii, a Hawaiian newspaper.

A Song For Ka Haku O Hawaii a name song

Let everyone learn the name of the chief

1. The way Kuloloia sits in the calm is beautiful

Like a bird clinging to quietness

The sound of the sea by the cliffs is like that of a conch

The resounding call at Papakanene

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

2. I lean over a bit then you complain

I lean over a bit then you complain

All curled up in the cold of Holio

Look at the beauty of the dahlia flower

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

Chant 19. cont.

3. The human looks as shiny as a wooden bowl

Sparkling so brightly in the waters of Honokaupu

What he likes is when like a ribbon

My body sways

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

4. I lean over a bit then you complain

I lean over a bit then you complain

Lack of love within him complains

Here I am with sweet perfume

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

5. Waialeale is lovely in the quietness

The way Leinoai sits in the sea

It sparkles like a glass of gin

The nonokane rain stays at sea

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

e composed by Kaulu

1. Lanihuli is lovely with kamakahala blossoms

Rocked by the ahihi plants

The ahihi is rocking in the wind

Standing compact in the Kiowao rain

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Chant 19. cont.

2. The Malualua wind comes in gusts

There are two of us in the forest of the (? huailana ?)

The heart grows light, remembering love

Love that heeds not the call

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

3. The flower of the lehua closes, not tame at all

Timid of the peck of a bird

He has quieted without permission

He's the one I had planned on

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

4. Kawaihoa is beautiful passing on the sea

Passing on to the top of Kuialauahi

My love is like a glowing fire

Oh what a flower that is that the bird dines on

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

5. The sky and red eyeball are shaded

Sparkling at the peak of Keawe

His majesty leans over; Kauikeaouli

The rose blossom scented with perfume

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song

Chant 19. cont.

6. The sweet fragrance is what I have smelled

I cared first (however) for the thought

The name it's true your voice

His majesty Kauikeaouli calls

U-ie-ie-ie-ie-ie-I

Haku O Hawaii a name song
