Kaha 1 – Lihaliha.

1. Lihaliha Hoolua. 2. Kin, wind that comes sneaking in – like man for woman. This man sneaked in & enjoyed sex over night; woman surfeited, too much of it. Pakuikui, wanted it again, then again, taking all chances he had because she not his property.
3. Puukolu ako Malua – over night, by prearrangement – hear noise, sneak & hide, go at it again.
Koki, to slice off the fat – fat of her.
Puukolu, the mound pua o ka mai. Covers two double lips, with itself makes 3.
5. Wind Maluaka, this kin, spy. Wind of M. from Hilo. Be careful, make fast the twine that holds love. 7. Get cord, fasten tight like fish on hook, lest M. from Hilo snatch her away. That is what I have longed for, wanted for.

To get woman back don't go after her. Get friend to make luau with woman invited. Lover comes in, is called on to chant, chants of love to woman, and woman comes back to him. See aia la o Halemanuau mele.

Kaha — Lihalika

1. Lihalika, surfeit, like getting overdose, disgusted with fat; sometimes sad blow, one death after another, a surfeit of rich food.
2. Spy — kept mistress. Unless Puna disgusted with constant report of spys following this man & woman.
3. Cutting out a fat piece.
4. must be silent, but call one outside to come in — why if free access.

1. Hoolua brings down heat & fumes of sulphur banks, get tired of it. Don't see how mele applies to Puna unless heat of passion.

Malua would refer to man — coming up to get water of Sehua (Ku wai); nothing about Huaka. This Malua spread all over Kapaa — had full away over woman, his property, no one elses.

Been there time & times, spies located him, scandal spread all over Kapaa. Why keep your mouth shut, invite me in, I can only thank you with void.

meles run together, pieced together.

Mele Kui (from Kukona (Mrs. John Porter, Wainaku, Hilo).

Notes from Professor Fred Beckley (Ka-ha-pula). Theo. Kelsey collection.

Ka-'uiki is of the color of faded red-ochre.

1. Mahie Maui. The Maurian is calm, unworried by the challenge of the contender from Hawaii.

2. O ka ihu 'akala i pio 'ia. The challenger got a bloody nose. 3. Kai halulu. He challenges, makes a disturbance.

4. Ka-'uiki holds on to the champion. It is the pink-soiled impregnable fortress, which for centuries was possessed by Hawaii. It represents the bloody-nosed Hawaii champion.

Mokihana, the name of the fragrant berry, represents the Maui champion, the favorite one of the Mauiites, held in appreobation by the makaainanas, defender of Maui's honor.

5. Hii ka nalu. Keaniniu is at Hawaii; he comes as an opponent. Waves held him back so he couldn't come ashore. Niniu indicates the jealousy aroused in the contender when he came rushing in bragging. He had to wash the blood of his nose (niniu, pour on medicine (Dit)).

6. Hii Waikōloa. This is the name of the cold wintry wind that brings wild ducks from the north. The contender got a very cold reception. He was left no other recourse but to hug the pebbles of the beach, just holding on to them, with no chance to come ashore.

10. O Punahoa, his antagonist (hoa paio? (Kelley))
The Maui champion's anger had been arroused by his boastful manner, and he gave him a cold reception on shore.

11. Oneone, like Oneanea. Pueo refers to the champion, the guardian of Maui's honor.
Pueokahi, sole champion.

12. Kahu-lili, the same champion (Mokihana), jealous of Maui's honor and good name.
Down below is Honua-ula, indicating that he considers the H'n lad a sissy, a wahine.

Pau Peapea. Peapea, who attempted to defy Maui, was burned. He was the kee palaha. The Hawaiian thought he would siege Maui as a squid serves something. He was warned that Peapea was burned, and that he would meet the same fate.

Keeumoku took Namahana, mother of Kaahumanu & then youngest wife of Kamehameha, and Kakeli wanted her for himself.

Ka lae o ka lio — man. represents ke poo (lae) where mind is. Learned wife with another alii and blew up. Pau i ke ahi = kane manuahi & Mokuhano (w) get in trouble.
